Fact 1: Many estimates put a THREE TRILLION DOLLAR price tag on the unfunded employee retirement and

There are tens of thousands of government bodies in the US that ~~want~~ need the solutions offered by Inscor, Inc.

IOGA is leading the way in offering pragmatic and actionable products to public sector entities, giving them a cost-effective solution for managing skyrocketing employee benefit costs.

Inscor's quite ingenious plan provides a cash stream to support each year's employee benefit obligations, while funding future liabilities – all with little or no spending increases, tax increases or reduction in benefits.

In addition, Inscor has also developed a plan for high net worth individuals, entertainers and professional athletes.

And with the addition of Dominique Wilkins, a legendary NBA hall of famer, to the board, Inscor will have a strong foothold in this market.

Analysts estimate* IOGA will earn $58 million profit in 2014.

Desperate government agencies and municipalities have no other option left on the table. They simply need the solutions offered by Inscor.

You may be thinking Inscor is in the business of philanthropy. Well you couldn't be more wrong. IOGA can help solve America's public sector debt problems and generate substantial returns to its shareholders.

"Expect Inscor to become a dominant player in the industry, and its profitability to skyrocket in the coming years."

Inscor's target client has between 4,000-5,000 employees, and the anticipated employee life insurance sign up rate is 20-25%. According to various models, an average public sector contract should be around $15 million, of which $9 million is realized in year one.

The average contract for a high net worth individual, entertainer or athlete could be bring in revenues of around $700,000, with 60% of this booked in year one.

While Inscor is currently trading around $0.70, analyst consensus is for a $3 to $5 price target on IOGA, while one analyst, Goldman, has placed a $3.25+ price target on Inscor. That's a 364% increase from today's price.
