Fact: Copper ore is running low!

In fact, some experts are saying we only have 25 years left to mine it before it's all gone! The world is scrambling to grab every last ounce, but Swingplane Ventures (SWVI) has recently acquired a historically copper-rich property in the world's biggest copper producing country!

Your time to act is NOW!

Greetings,

What you're about to hear may be hard to believe, but definitely something you should consider as an investor looking to secure profits.

Experts are saying that we are about 25 years away from running out of mineable copper ore. This is a frightening development, for sure, but it doesn't have to be for those with the foresight to act now on this advanced warning.

For those who are wondering, just how much modern society depends on copper, one just needs to look at the high profile industries that rely heavily on this raw commodity.

Today's copper is used in construction, power generation and transmission, electronic product manufacturing, as well as the production of industrial machinery and transportation vehicles.

So it's easy to see how far reaching a shortage of this element would be, but...

For investors who take action now though, this coming copper ore shortage could reap them an epic windfall unlike any we've ever seen before.

SWVI & Chile's Copper

Swingplane Ventures' Copper: Profit Points Every Investor Should Know

■ SWVI's Algarrobo property is estimated a potential $20 Billion in copper and consists of a whopping 15,224 hectares and is currently producing an unheard of 9% copper on just 10 acres of the property. Astounding, seeing as most Major copper mines generally average less than 1%!

■ SWVI's Algarrobo property is located near Chile's gigantic 9 billion ton "Chuquicamata Copper Deposit"!

■ SWVI: Huge buyout target! This proven producer could have major mining companies could be circling as we speak!

Country – Why I'm Predicting This Stock Could Soar!

Most people don't realize that South America's Chile is the world's top producer of copper, but it is. In fact, according to a recent British Geological Survey, Chile came in at #1, with their copper output is a staggering 1/3 of the world's production – followed only by the United States, Indonesia and Peru.

So, in other words, copper is to Chile what oil is to Saudi Arabia or Texas – meaning they're at the top of the heap.

This American based company basically grabbed land in what is proven to be the world's biggest hot bed for copper and what research reveals, is nothing short of astonishing...

SWVI has grabbed a piece of property smack dab in the middle of prime Chilean copper country – and keeping in mind that the world is running dangerously short of or copper ore – this fact alone is almost enough to make one consider buying this stock, but...

Considering that SWVI is committed to increasing their already significant copper production at their Algarrobo Property in Chile, this could possibly be the biggest copper stock of 2013.

Now, these two factors aside, the most important question is simple, and you might be thinking the same thing: How much copper does their property hold?

Well, the short answer? Possibly a lot, as they could potentially be sitting on one of the biggest copper ore discoveries of the 21st Century.

Exploratory work to date has shown that the thickness and grade of surface

Exploratory work to date has shown that the thickness and grade of surface veins suggests significant potential of additional copper mineralization at greater, but potentially minable, depths.

From their own website, “The Company believes there may be potential for discovery of a world-class copper deposit underlying the Algarrobo Property and immediate area and plans to undertake a coincident exploration program to further assess and evaluate this perceived potential.”

So in other words...

SWVI may have just hit the copper motherlode – and are ready to dig deeper to get it!
